Medical Coding Services

Medical coding turns complex medical information into simple codes to keep medical records and charge insurance companies. This uniform medical coding system allows patients' health information to be kept track of more quickly. This system speeds up the transmission of medical records.

When it comes to being paid, medical billing and coding are the most crucial aspects of the process. Even the tiniest mistake might result in a payment delay. As a healthcare professional, billing and coding are necessary, but they may get in the way of delivering high-quality treatment. Even though medical billing and coding might take up a full-time job, it pays well when done correctly.

A well-functioning financial system is critical to your Organization's success. Your patient-centered treatment suffers when you spend time and money on medical billing and coding. Your hospital can free up capital and time by getting help with medical billing and coding.

Staff in healthcare companies' medical billing and coding departments utilize software to track patients' medical data. Patients would benefit even more from the simple payment option. Medica Gateway works with many excellent hospitals and has the most affordable medical coding and billing services.

Why do you need Medica Gateways medical coding services?

Medical coding applies uniform alphanumeric codes to healthcare services supplied, such as medical diagnosis, treatments, and services offered, and the use of medical equipment and supplies. A medical coder consults the patient's medical record (e.g., doctor notes, test results, and service lists). Coding medical records is a complicated process that starts with getting the correct information from existing records, assigning diagnostic and procedure codes, and submitting claims to insurance companies, among other things. This requires experienced personnel; here at Medica Gateway, we understand the complexity of the work and take care of your worries. The following are some of the reasons why you need Medica Gateways' medical coding and medical billing services:

- Claim denials may be reduced with proper medical coding

To get correct payments, medical coding must be of high quality. Medical coding mistakes can be costly and cause claims to be denied. They can also cause unnecessary compliance concerns and extra costs. Medica gateways have medical coders that are certified to work for Medica. CPC (Certified Professional Coders) and CCS (Certified Coding Specialist) are two credentials that show that our staff is the best at medical coding.

- Requirements dictated by the payer

Here at Medica Gateway, medical coding is performed following the comprehensive work instructions provided by our clients, based on relevant clinical data. Medical coding is carried out following the protocols set by our clients via specific work instructions based on the clinical data that is readily accessible to the coder. The work of a medical coder is scrutinized by a skilled coding auditor with the necessary training and credentials. Code correctness and turnaround time are guaranteed to the highest standards in the industry.

- Auditing Services for Medical Coding

Many of our customers have asked us to conduct an audit of the code written by their foreign-based team members, and we have done so. Audits by our skilled medical billing auditors ensure accuracy and adherence to established practices.

- Denial of Service Coding

In addition to reviewing rejected claims and changing codes, our coding team also tries to get more money from payers by resubmitting claims.

Outsourcing medical coding may provide you with the following advantages:

The advantages of outsourcing medical coding services to Medica Gateway:

Various coding and IT technologies are available to improve coding efficiency, cost, and accuracy. In contrast, systems such as the Healthcare Common Procedure Coding System (HCPCS) let you keep these tools in-house, but you'll need extra staff. Outsourcing may save your healthcare facility money and headaches associated with in-house technology management.

- More focus on healthcare

AAPC-certified medical coders with a firm grasp of medical specialties and compliance standards are essential for a fast and accurate medical coding process. Keeping an in-house staff of coders is challenging, and the return on investment isn't always great either. Recruitment and retention costs must also be factored in. Outsourcing medical coding allows healthcare providers to spend their time and energy on patient care instead.

- Add-on services

Healthcare facilities and hospitals may benefit from frequent information from Medica Gateway services on the progress and status of claims. These reports may help identify where coding efficiency and results can be improved.

- Reduced rejections of claims

Denying claims because of data inaccuracies and coding errors may cost an organization money. Increased rework and delays in payment will result as result. Medical coding mistakes can be reduced by outsourcing, and rework can be done more quickly if it's necessary to do so.

- Scalability

Outsourcing medical coding services to Medica Gateway ensures that the services are scalable and match your company's needs, allowing for rapid adoption. Changing the size of your in-house coding crew depending on business trends or other imperatives will be incredibly challenging for your healthcare facility. However, if you hire someone else to do your medical coding, you won't have to consider the infrastructure or the amount of work needed.

Call Center Services

Medica Gateway is dedicated to providing you with all the essential services in one place. One of the vital services, along with medical billing and coding, is call center services, which can also be helpful. Many sectors throughout the country and across the globe have adopted call centers as a standard practice. Many healthcare facilities rely on call centers to assist their patients.

Consistent performance, centralized call management, and resource management are just a few of the benefits of proactive outreach, advanced technology, and infrastructure savings. When it comes to healthcare, all of these benefits are crucial. Patients can use call management when they enter a healthcare organization's care delivery system through a single entrance. Scheduling, central information management, care inquiries, critical outbound communications, and prescription refills are just a few ways call patients can use command.

Why choose Medica Gateway Call Center Services?

Medica Gateway Call centers in the healthcare industry are similar to retail call centers in handling incoming and outgoing calls. Still, they are solely focused on interacting with patients and healthcare professionals. They help patients set up appointments and give them information about their health care options as part of their care.

When it comes to healthcare call centers, the emphasis is not on answering as many calls as possible in the least amount of time but rather on providing the best possible service to patients. A standard call center's metrics include average handling time and cost per call. Despite this, the objective is to get callers on and off the phone in the shortest possible time. The following are the reasons you need Medica Gateway call center service:

Improved patient participation in healthcare call centers:

Healthcare call centers emphasize engagement, defined by the patient's overall experience with a provider at critical touchpoints. These are some of the reasons:

- Accessibility

Scheduling an appointment is the first step in the patient's journey toward better health. Getting in touch with a healthcare contact center is very important because it will make this person's first impression good and lessen their frustration.

- Communication

Scheduling an appointment is the first step in the patient's journey toward better health. Getting in touch with a healthcare contact center is very important because it will make this person's first impression good and lessen their frustration.

- Caring

It is essential for patients to feel at ease and connected to their healthcare providers. A compassionate healthcare contact center can develop that relationship with continuous and clear communication. Interacting and speaking with patients can help them better understand how to care for themselves. Patients need options when they are in the middle of their healthcare journey, and open and caring communication between the patient and the healthcare professional may help build trust.

- Patient Satisfaction

The initial encounter with a healthcare contact center is essential to establishing a good, long-term connection with the patient. Understanding the patient's complaints or concerns, directing them to the correct department if necessary, and treating them with respect will go a long way toward making the patient feel good about their visit.

To ensure patient happiness, we ensure that our call center representatives can communicate with patients as they desire. While many patients are happy to contact their doctors over the phone, others, particularly younger patients, prefer to use digital channels such as email, text messaging, and live chat. Your healthcare call center must have the technology to use these new ways of getting in touch with people.

Medica Gateway Transcription Services:

Medica Gateway Medical Transcription Services focuses on giving healthcare professionals medical transcription services that are legally and legally correct.

Patients' medical records must still be entered into the electronic health record (EHR) by doctors who dictate their notes. After a full consultation day, busy doctors may not have the time to transcribe patient exam notes, clinical summaries, surgical notes, and other reports. To provide top-notch patient care and essential health information to healthcare professionals, EHR documentation must be made quickly.

We've been expediting the healthcare documentation process with a broad customer base, including multi-specialty clinics, hospital-based clinics, group practices, and health management corporations. We've also reduced operating expenses and increased ROI for those clients.

What if you can't afford to hire a full-time medical assistant in your reception area?

You may want to think about outsourcing your medical transcriptions:

All medical reports, such as medical histories, physical examinations, operation reports, summaries, emergency department reports, chart notes, medical assessments, mental health evaluations, and x-ray reports, are no problem for our transcriptionists, who have years of expertise in the field.

Our medical transcription service uses EHR and EMR systems without any problems. There are no long-term commitments or setup costs to worry about with us. Speech recognition software can't pick up on little or big faults in dictations or recordings, but the human brain can, which helps reduce transcribing errors.

Please take advantage of the expertise of our professional transcriptionists!

Why do you need our services?

Medica Gateway transcriptionists are essential for a variety of reasons:

Patients' medical histories are built upon via medical transcription, which serves as a reference for doctors and provides a basis for future patient visits. In addition, it aids physicians in assessing patients' current physical conditions, drawing up treatment plans, and implementing swift follow-up procedures. It's essential to be as accurate as possible because even small mistakes can have significant consequences.

In most hospitals, patients are often treated by more than one doctor. A well-maintained patient record helps physicians and experts from various fields communicate better. The free flow of medical information saves time and helps doctors make the best diagnoses and treatment plans.

Nurses and other support workers may access the transcribed papers to provide the best possible patient care. To better understand what to look out for, what lab technicians need, and how much medication to provide, it's essential to know what to look.

The billing and coding team uses medical record transcriptions to bill insurance companies. To keep the quality of your medical records transcriptions high enough for claims and reimbursements, you'll need medical records transcriptionists who know how to do their job well.

Medical records must be kept on file, so you'll need to engage a transcriptionist. When it comes to resolving legal disputes, these records are invaluable.

A healthcare center can't function properly without the help of medical transcriptionists. When you work with a transcription company with a good track record, you can be sure that your work will be accurate and high-quality.

Many medical institutions and transcription firms now use speech-recognition software. This software can take a doctor's notes and turn them into a written report in seconds.

We at Medica Gateway firmly believe that nothing beats the quality of a hand-transcribed transcript. Proofreaders may correct software-generated errors. However, those proofreaders may not always go back and re-check the material.

The Medical Scribe Service

From documentation assistant to productivity partner, the function of the typical medical transcriptionist has evolved significantly. Aside from cutting down on administrative work, today's medical scribes improve the efficiency of the whole healthcare team. In an era when burnout is rising, medical scribes are filling in the gaps left by overworked clinicians and allowing them to work at the top of their licenses.

Medical scribing services:

EM and HM practitioners have had to spend more time entering and recording data during patient visits because of the pressure to make and install EMRs and the need for more detailed documentation. This could affect how much time they have to give the patient treatment.

Medical scribes or a speech-to-text EMR dictation tool may help providers be more efficient. Hospitals must support provider productivity, efficiency, and documentation. SCP's Chief Medical Officer said this includes scribes and other tools for writing down what people say.

EM and HM doctors rely on scribes to help record patient information into the medical record under the doctor's supervision. Doctor Schillinger says that scribes benefit from searching up data like what's in old records, nurse's notes, drugs the patient is taking, and things the doctor can't immediately recollect.

The scribe records the doctor's interactions with the patient in real-time and notifies the doctor of issues such as social or family history that may need to be asked about. So, there are fewer entries when notes are taken during therapy.

Speech-to-text EMR dictation technologies are increasingly becoming healthcare providers' preferred documentation method. A doctor can record patient contacts by speaking straight into the computer with this.

Using either medical scribe services or speech-to-text EMR tools, a hospital promises to improve the physician experience by removing them from their EMR. As a result, better documentation, faster patient flow, and a better patient experience happened.

- Increased Productivity & Efficiency

Provider efficiency is increased, and paperwork loads are reduced through the employment of scribes. Providers can visit more patients and be more productive since they no longer have the responsibility of taking notes and documenting the record in real-time.

- A More Comfortable Bedside Table Manner

When doctors must engage with the EMR during patient visits, they tend to be less communicative since they divide their attention between the patient and the computer. Scribes free up the doctor's hands so they can talk to their patients face-to-face instead of via a computer screen. It's better for the doctor and the patient to concentrate on the appointment rather than the EMR.

- Enhanced Control of Surge Volume

Medica Gateway medical scribing services are also valuable for dealing with a spike in the number of patients in the emergency department. More patients in the emergency room equal less time spent with each clinician, but since surge times often only last a few hours, bringing in more clinical personnel is sometimes too sluggish to immediately affect the current situation. Surge times Physical or online scribes can help the medical team meet the needs of their patients quickly and without sacrificing quality when they write down everything they do, either in person or online.

- Coverage on the Move

Scribes may be a valuable resource for doctors when the ED has a low provider-patient ratio. They help cover shifts by cutting down on the need to hire more providers, and another is by improving the output of those who already work there.

- Reduced Waiting Times

Every effort is being made to minimize wait times and LWOTs in emergency rooms. It takes time to go from the patient's door to the doctor's office, which has become a standard benchmark for emergency departments. This is because medical scribes, who go with doctors when they go on rounds and write down observations and observations in an electronic medical record, are more effective and productive.

- Assistance for rural hospitals

Virtual scribes—those who work from home and speak with doctors via a headset—can be a lifesaver for rural hospitals, which lack the medical personnel that metropolitan hospitals have.

A scribe's real-time recording of doctor-patient contact is provided for a scribe's real-time recording. One benefit of using an electronic scribe is that test results can be reported more quickly when the doctor comes into the room.

- A Better Quality of Life for Patients

As a result of patient happiness affecting a hospital's payment, all medical staff is interested in improving their patient satisfaction numbers (HCAPS).

Aside from improving efficiency and production, scribes have the potential to enhance the patient experience and satisfaction. Their service helps doctors and patients (and their families) communicate better, leading to a better patient experience. Medical scribes are essential in improving patient satisfaction and ensuring healthcare professionals are happy, which are very important.

Virtual scribes (PDF) were used at a hospital in Arizona because providers were dissatisfied with the time it took to complete paperwork after their shifts. An average of 24 minutes per shift was saved because scribes could record and evaluate in real-time, allowing providers to spend more time at home with their families.

The advantages of using Medica Gateway medical scribes services described here show that hospitals stand to gain from doing so. Every hospital should consider any service that improves efficiency, boosts patient and provider happiness, reduces costs, and maximizes income.

Electronic Health Records Services

An electronic health record (EHR) is a digital archive of a patient's medical history. Your age, gender, ethnicity, medical history, medications, allergies, and vaccination status are all included in EHRs. Also included are test results, discharge instructions, and payment information.

Client records are accessible quickly and easily using the Medica Gateway EHR. It's as simple to use an electronic chart as a paper one, but there are a few key advantages: they're always accessible and comprehensive.

Our EHR was designed with ease of use, speed, and scalability. Healthcare providers don't have to spend a fortune on the cutting-edge features offered by us. AR & Denial Management is time-consuming, and most practices (and billing businesses) do not dedicate enough resources to maximize recovery. Medica Gateway's services are highly functionalized and backed by software tools that often result in a considerable net gain in reimbursement for each client practice, making outsourcing this function a positive value equation.

- Reporting and Workflow

- Hourly Help Desk

- Use of Analytics

Claim denials could be caused by several operations in the revenue cycle chain. Denial problems frequently relate to certain facilities or practices. We know the patterns in claim denials, and we've started an iterative approach to minimize them by focusing on their root causes.

Provision of Enrollment and Credentialing

Too many manual processes are involved in having a provider certified with a payer, including filling out application papers, answering inquiries from payers, and following up to finish the credentialing request. You may use MedicaGateway's Provider Credentialing Services to keep your information current with payers.

A crucial stage in the revenue cycle is provider credentialing, which is having a doctor or other provider linked with payers. Through the method, patients may use their insurance cards to pay for their medical services, and the provider can receive payment for their services.

- Disputes Over In-Network Contracts

Successful contract negotiation is the first step in building your facility to the desired quality. MedicaGateway will take advantage of certain conditions to guarantee the best pricing for each physician, such as patient volumes in a specific area.

- Register as a new provider

This is one of the most challenging tasks and can be tedious. MedicaGateway has extensive registration experience with various insurance companies. This has given us the ability to manage more diverse application processes and manage them efficiently.

We prepare and format applications and send them to sign. We send and track each application. We will complete the application. We verify with the insurance company the provider's expertise. We continuously monitor and resolve claims and policy-related issues.

Analytics and Reporting

It has always been a struggle for healthcare organizations to save costs, boost coordination, and deliver more with fewer resources. However, a more educated populace that demands more value and better treatment is now the source of these pressures. MedicaGateway has strategies that promote analytics-driven decision-making across the company, which is essential in this new paradigm.

Analytics in the healthcare industry refers to the utilization of enormous volumes of data to give businesses helpful information. Making informed decisions based on data is more manageable with quick and trustworthy analytics that provide thorough analysis and current reports. These insights, which support fact-based decision-making, are created through analytical disciplines. These choices enhance planning, management, measurement, and learning a result.

Our affordable solutions provide you with thorough reports and analyses of your team's performance, giving you helpful information, you can use to increase employee productivity and efficiency.

- Customizable Reports

With the stroke of a mouse, you can view and analyze your practice's financial data. Our analytics and reporting system enables healthcare practitioners to obtain real-time and up-to-date information in detailed visual charts and graphs, allowing them to make on-the-fly choices.

- Custom Dashboard

The adaptable and simple-to-build dashboard from MedicaGateway serves as the brain of our analytics and reporting solution.

With the help of our administrative dashboard, you may gain a new understanding of your company's success and valuable knowledge for making expansion plans in the future.

- Improving operational insights

Healthcare faces a once-in-a-lifetime chance to revolutionize every aspect, from rapid clinical research to product efficacy, safety, and value. This opportunity is both intriguing and challenging. Our specialists, driven by the new software, are committed to assisting you in leading this change.

- Giving detailed clinical insights

MedicaGateway reporting options are sluggish and inflexible regarding more advanced reporting needs, requiring IT assistance and knowledge and frequently leading to time-consuming data dumps into Excel. This makes it challenging to handle the financial closing process effectively across various healthcare facilities while also maintaining the capacity to consolidate in multiple ways—on time and with flexibility for last-minute modifications.

- Providing regular data-driven reports

The MedicaGateway team is entrusted with managing supporting data and claims, but they have trouble finding the information they want. You are forced to send requests to IT and wait while they produce or update your reports because you have extensive reporting requirements.

Telehealth

Telehealth refers to online information and communication tools to manage your health care and receive medical treatments from a distance. Computers and mobile gadgets like tablets and smartphones are examples of technologies. Patients can utilize this technology at home. Or, in remote places, a nurse or other healthcare provider might offer telehealth services out of a clinic or mobile van—the use of technology by healthcare practitioners to enhance or support healthcare services. MedicaGateway has a well-established telehealth services system.

- Reimbursement Eligibility

As reimbursement regulations improve, more clinicians will be able to connect to provide tailored patient care in a distant location. This option for in-person visits allows you to convert unbillable follow-up conversations into revenue-generating interactions while causing minimum disruption to your usual practice operations.

- Designed with patients in mind,

The MedicaGateway system is designed to effortlessly access patients across iOS, Android, and PC, with ease being one of the driving reasons for patient happiness. Telehealth is also helpful in empowering patients who may experience external barriers to accessing treatment, reducing daily no-shows and last-minute cancellations.

- Immediate Care

An essential function of telemedicine is as a less expensive alternative to urgent treatment. Online physicians provide excellent treatment and prescription medications to treat common illnesses for non-emergencies.

- The patient portal

A patient portal is available online at the primary care office. Instead of email, these portals give patients a safer alternative to communicating with your healthcare facility. A portal offers a secure online tool for the following tasks:

- Send a nurse or your doctor a message.
- Request prescription renewals.
- Examine test outcomes and summaries of prior visits.
- To receive preventative care, schedule appointments, or request appointment reminders.

The portal could serve as a single point of contact for any expert's patients might consult, making you a part of an extensive healthcare system.

- Remote patient observation

With MedicaGateways Remote Patient Monitoring, patient health data is reported, gathered, sent, and evaluated through electronic devices such as wearables, mobile devices, smartphone applications, and internet-connected desktops. RPM technology prompts patients to weigh themselves and send the results to their doctors. Blood pressure, heart data, oxygen saturation levels, and respiration rates are just a few vital sign measurements collected and transmitted via wearables and other electronic monitoring devices.

- Store and Forward

Our Save and Forward telehealth solution uses data storage and transmission technologies to record store, and transfer patient health information for asynchronous healthcare delivery. CAT scans, MRIs, X-rays, pictures, videos, and text-based patient data are acquired and delivered to experts and other care team members to assess patients and aid in their treatment.

Today's patients are used to discovering answers with only a few mouse clicks. These patients have grown incredibly tech-savvy and anticipate the same degree of responsiveness and customer service as other customers. MedicaGateway has a distinct edge compared to other marketing firms since it only targets the healthcare sector. Each week, team members from MedicaGateway assess patient catchment system flaws and provide and execute immediate fixes.

- Ensure the Success of Your Current Staff

The Patient Experience Management (PEM) service by MedicaGateway is the culmination of these best practices. The PEM program offers scalable solutions to assist new patient conversions, lower patient no-show rates, and provide front office staff members with a venue for continuing role-playing to break destructive behaviors that could negatively affect the patient experience.

All patient-facing employees must get training on the new patient process and be coached on appropriately nurturing these patients throughout the patient care journey before engaging in any direct-to-patient marketing or procedure-specific marketing initiatives.

- Streamlining your work

With MedicaGateway's Flow Management Services, you can ensure a smooth patient experience. Advanced patient flow management software from MedicaGateway facilitates the transition between walk-ins and pre-booked patients. Patients may depend on the system's smartphone notifications to keep track of their appointments and plan their schedules appropriately. This eliminates administrative work and maximizes the efficiency of healthcare workers.

- Adaptive Dashboard

Adopt a system for real-time monitoring and reporting. You can control your healthcare facilities and self-service equipment from a central healthcare office and receive the information you need to create an exceptional patient experience.

Strategic reports generated by the system are used to make future choices to deliver superior healthcare services while assuring improved resource allocation and strategic planning to improve the efficiency of your facilities.

- Smart Payments

A wide range of simple payment options, including credit and debit cards, health savings accounts, and electronic checks, may help you collect more money. Reduce the need for third-party collections and the likelihood of bad debt by collecting more payments before and after treatment.

- Understanding Patient Experience

Customer satisfaction surveys aren't always enough to provide a complete picture of a customer's experience. You may use experience mapping to create a strategy. With this method, it is possible to obtain feedback from practically any audience (in healthcare, for example, we often talk with patients, staff, and referring physicians).

- Managing Messages and Queries

The promise of the maintained quality of service and how it is supported are the starting points of our management method. Following the brand strategy, our consultants conduct market research to identify the most critical influences on consumer behavior, the attitudes that need to be reinforced, and those that need to be overcome. This method guarantees that message mapping is a creative process based on research. According to our research, perception and language are crucial in motivating behavior.

Revenue Cycle Management (RCM)

Regarding tracking patient care episodes, revenue cycle management (RCM) is a financial procedure that healthcare institutions utilize in conjunction with medical billing software. Coupling administrative data like a patient's name and insurance provider with the treatment a patient gets and their healthcare data helps RCM bring together healthcare's business and clinical aspects.

RCM necessitates regular contact with health insurers. When a patient calls to make an appointment, the doctor's office or hospital personnel will often verify that the patient has the coverage they claim to have.

- Scheduling of patients

Revenue Cycle Management services begin with a "patient encounter" that, in ideal circumstances, the patient schedules in advance. Hospital Emergency Departments and Urgent Care Centers may be exceptions.

- Eligibility and Benefits Verification

When scheduling, the patient's insurance information is captured so the provider may verify benefits and determine insurance coverage. If necessary, a financial planning engagement can be arranged in advance of medical services rendered, and appropriate patient contributions can be collected during service.

- The step before Authorization

During the Benefit and Eligibility verification, the patient's insurance carrier may inform the provider that they need to submit a pre-authorization to provide and be reimbursed for services to the patient. The Authorization consists of submitting a request with accompanying Medical Records for the Insurance company to guarantee reimbursement for several visits for the patient.

- The Patient's Interaction

In the patient encounter, providers and patients meet to discuss the patient's medical issues, devise treatment plans, and provide therapy. This interaction is recorded in the patient's records either electronically in an EHR or on paper. When the patient arrives, the encounter officially begins. The provider's administrative team then performs a patient intake. Confirming demographics, insurance, and medical history is part of this process. If the interaction is face-to-face, they may also make copies of insurance cards and driver's licenses at this time.

- The capture of Charges / Claims Production and Submission

All of the money comes from this. A claim sent to an insurance company for payment is linked to the patient's demographic and insurance information, as well as information about the provider and the place where the treatment was given.

- Posting of Payments in Cash

Customer satisfaction surveys aren't always enough to provide a complete picture of a customer's experience. You may use experience mapping to create a strategy. With this method, it is possible to obtain feedback from practically any audience (in healthcare, for example, we often talk with patients, staff, and referring physicians).
